

Email to providers:

Hello!

The International Society for the Study of Women's Sexual Health (ISSWSH) is launching an important initiative to enhance patient-provider communication, and we need your help! We are seeking to learn how patients commonly identify and name different parts of their vulvar anatomy, with the goal of fostering better communication with their healthcare providers.

This survey is IRB approved. Our ask of you is simple: Provide the link or QR code to the survey to your patients.

Please find below several ways to inform patients.

1. The link to the survey and language that can be easily copy/pasted into your newsletters or social media accounts.
2. Poster/flyer that features a QR code linking to the survey
3. QR code "business cards" to print and display in waiting rooms or exam rooms.

Thank you for your support in making a difference!
Please contact info@isswsh.org with any questions.

LINK: <https://redcap.link/vulvar>

(Newsletter blurb example)

Are you passionate about advocating for your health and enhancing communication with your healthcare providers?

Help us by taking a quick, anonymous survey from the ISSWSH Terminology Sub-Committee. We're looking at how people name parts of their vulvar anatomy. It's fast, easy, and your voice matters! Your participation will help us improve the dialogue between patients and providers.

Share your views by clicking the survey <https://redcap.link/vulvar>

Your voice matters – let's make a difference together!
Please contact info@isswsh.org if you have any questions.

(Social media blurb examples)

Instagram:

Want to help improve communication with your health care provider? Take a quick, anonymous survey on how you name parts of your vulvar anatomy. Your input will help enhance patient-provider conversations. <https://redcap.link/vulvar>

Twitter short character count:

Help improve patient/provider communication- Take a quick, anonymous survey from ISSWSH on how you name parts of your vulvar anatomy! <https://redcap.link/vulvar>

Facebook with unlimited character count:

Help improve patient/provider communication! ISSWSH is conducting a quick, anonymous survey on how individuals name parts of their vulvar anatomy. Your input can make a real difference in enhancing patient-provider conversations. It only takes a couple minutes! Click the link to participate and let your voice be heard. Together, we can make a difference! <https://redcap.link/vulvar>

QR Code for use anywhere else you might need

